

DNA sequencing according to Sanger has been an established procedure for more than 40 years. A further development is next-generation sequencing, which can carry out DNA sequencing in a significantly shorter time. In addition to the basics of this sequencing technology, insights into bioinformatic evaluation are given.